But in reality, my adventure begins much earlier...

Drawing

When I was a child, I was always drawing, whether landscapes, my favorite cartoon characters or my classmates. I always had a pencil in my hand.

I was also pretty good at making paper frogs.

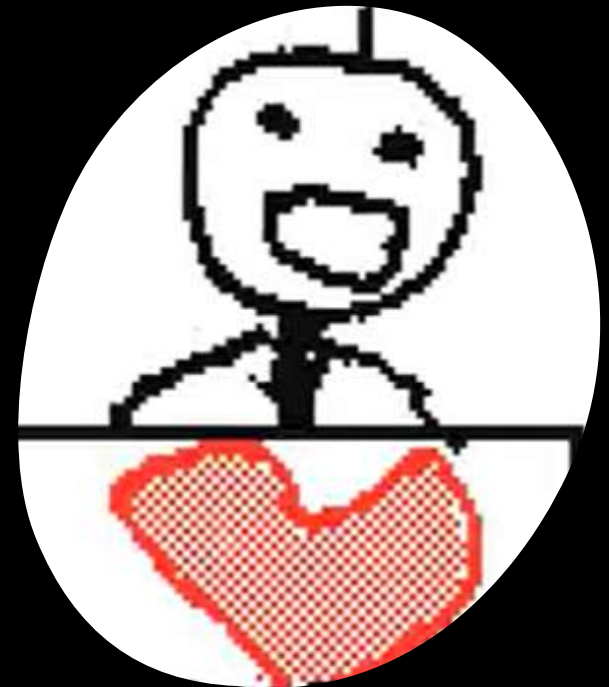

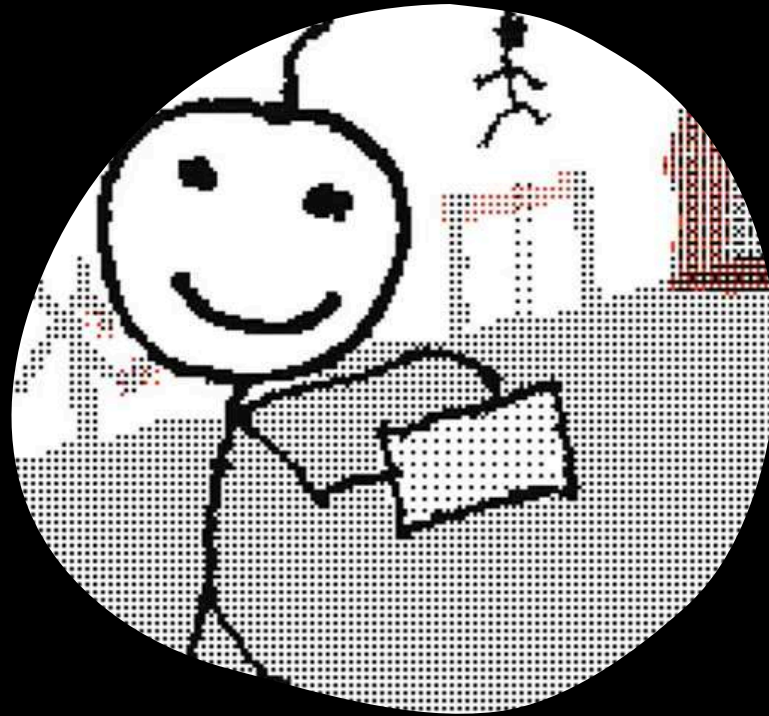

Animation

I was overjoyed the day I discovered Flipbooks, whether on paper or on Flipnote Studio, I spent hours creating them and bringing them to life. It was magical !

I even created this little character who lived a lot of adventures.

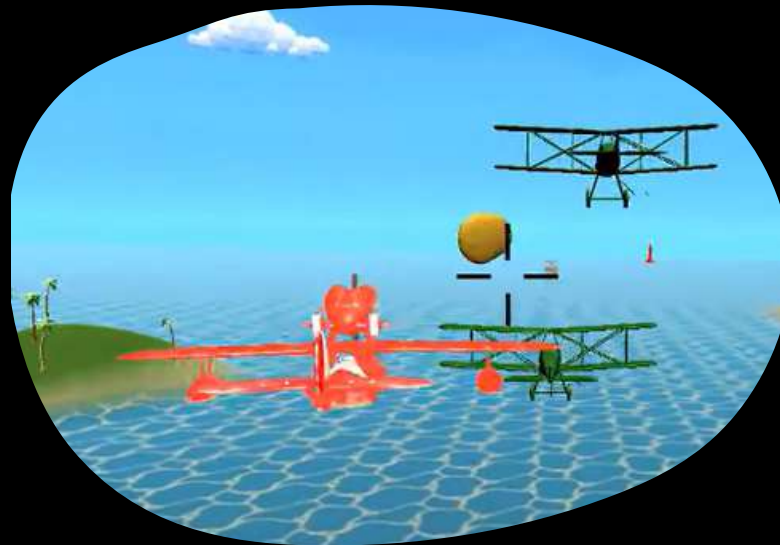

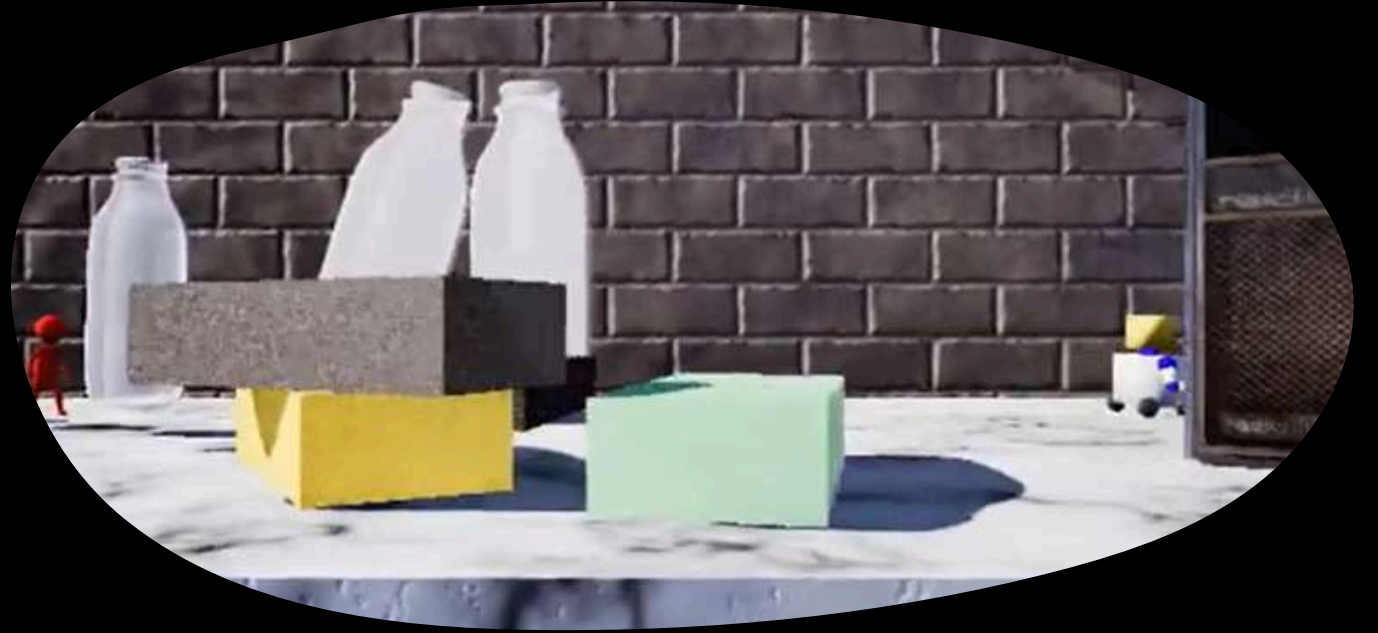

Later I discovered 3D animation, then...

Video-game

I spent a lot of time tinkering and having fun on Unreal Engine 4 and Unity, which gave me a good grounding in programming.

I've even been able to create a few games on my own and work on freelance games.

Web

Over time, the web has become my favorite playground.

I design interfaces as living, open and intuitive spaces.

It's even become impossible for me to navigate without wanting to reinvent what's bothering me. As soon as something goes wrong, the urge to transform it drives me to act, often by creating userscripts.
